SUNDAY
AUGUST 1, 1954

Practically no news in the few French papers this morning except about the bicycle races (which everyone hopes Monsieur Bobet will win for the second successive year), and, more importantly, the trip of Mendès to Tunis and his offer to the Bey of internal autonomy for the Protectorate. This is a daring and, it seems to me, a constructive move.

Peggy and John Ferguson, Mardi and John Hughes, and Rosie and Larry Hughes came to lunch with us at Versailles.
